

In this application a V-joint of a stainless steel tubular is made.

U-bars joined to the table through fittings for corners allow the positioning of a piece longer than the table itself, in such a way that the points to be welded are easily accessible to the operator.